GIRARD TO FACE JAPANESE COURT

Plans to Expand In Donora

American Steel and Wire Co. officials said today that every effort will be made to minimize the economic impact created by their decision to suspend operations at the Donora Zinc Works around November 1.

It was strongly hinted that the 16 acre site which housed the zinc smelting plant will provide room for the expansion of existing facilities at the Donora steel works.

"Our principal concern at the moment, however, is for the welfare of the 450 men who will be affected when zinc smelting operations are discontinued," said L. L. Mclincy, district manager of operations for the U. S. Steel Corp., parent firm of the Donora works.

According to McGlincy, every effort will be made to place Zinc Works employes in other plants of U. S. Steel.

Meetings Planned

Along that line, the firm plans a series of meetings with Zinc Works employes to discuss their future. At that time, unemployment and supplemental pay benefits will be discussed as well as future job possibilities.

"It is possible some of these men will be located in the Donora steel works," a spokesman for the company said, even though several hundred steelworkers have been furloughed recently.

"These layoffs are seasonal and reflect a general trend throughout the industry," the spokesman pointed out. "They will be recalled once steel operations return to normal."

As for skilled workers in the zinc plants they will be given every opportunity to stay with the company, it was disclosed.

All Zinc Works employes, with the exception of around 100 who will remain to operate the sulfuric acid plant, will lose their seniority. At Donora, seniority is figured on a plant basis.

Layoffs at the Zinc Works will be gradual for the next few months. Around November 1, smelting operations will halt.

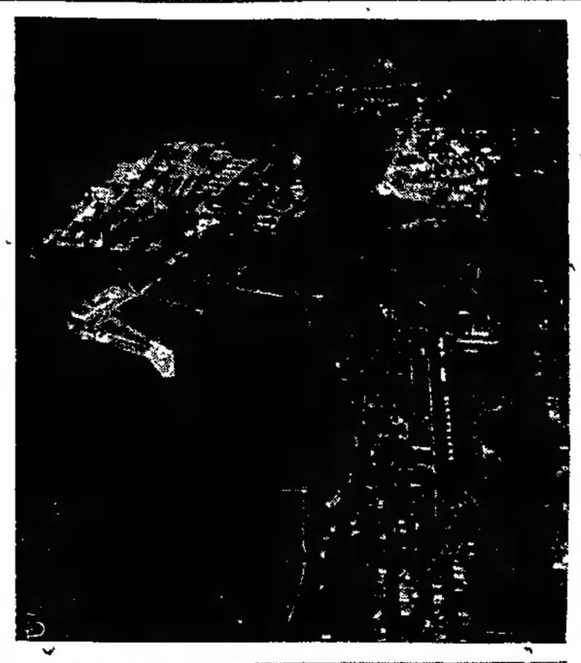
Asked about expansion plans, a company spokesman had this to say:

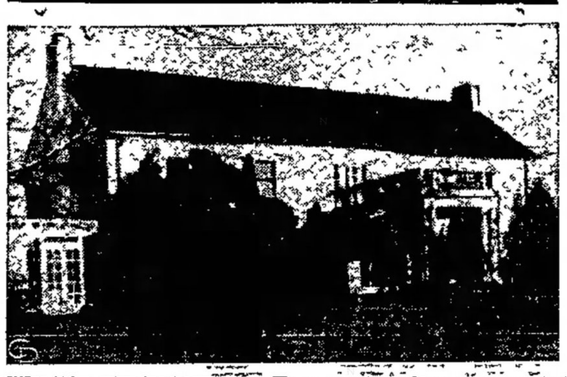
"In the past, there was simply no room to expand our steel plant. Now the 16 acres which housed the Zinc Works will give us room to expand. There is no intention to dispose of this property. And there is every indication that it will be used to expand our steel-making facilities in Donora."

At the moment, the firm plans to dismantle only the Zinc Works furnaces. All other buildings will remain until more detailed plans are drawn.

The company spokesman said that there is good reason to believe that the employment loss at the Zinc Works will be absorbed once expansion becomes a reality

Yesterday McGlincy and other officials of the firm met with civic and community leaders in Donora to explain that the zinc plant was closed, primarily because it was no longer competitive. They also reassured Donora's future as a steel community.





HAVEN FOR IKE VACATION — Three nearby golf courses and both fresh and salt water fishing make the U. S. Naval base (upper) at Newport, R. I., a mighty inviting haven for President Eisenhower's vacation. He and Mrs. Eisenhower will stay at the commandant's residence (lower). It is located on Coaster's Harbor island (left in aerial photo.) August is probable time.

Authority to Consider The Donora Problem

Concerned over increasing unemployment, the Washington County Redevelopment Authority today asked municipal officials in several valley communities to meet in Donora on July 23 to consider the problem.

At that time, the Authority will propose the formation of a Greater Monongahela Valley Region Planning Commission.

A spokesman for the Authority said the meeting was prompted by the American Steel and Wire Co. decision earlier in the week to suspend operations at the Donora Zinc Works around November 1.

Municipal officials from Donora, Monongahela, Charleroi, Speers, Allenport, North Charleroi, Elks, New Eagle and several townships have been invited to attend the meeting.

Survey Valuable

"If a planning commission had been in operation it is likely that a survey of the Donora plants would have shown as long as a year ago that the antiquated works would close its doors," said the Authority spokesman. "Preparations could have been made to find employment for the furloughed employes."

The Authority also disclosed that

Woman Seeks Reinstatement of Drivers License

A petition was filed in Fayette County yesterday asking the courts to overrule an order by the state Department of Revenue, suspending the operator's license of a Connellsville woman for 60 days.

The action, brought by Atty. Richard F. Maize for Melda May Guie, cites the ruling by the state, which resulted from police information.

According to the petition, the woman was stopped by Perryopolis Police Chief Stewart Stickel, while driving on Route 51 on Aug. 27, 1956. The citation says she was operating a car 70 miles per hour in a 50 miles per hour zone.

The petition states the woman must drive her husband to his place of employment each day. Enforcement of the rule would force the couple to suffer loss of earnings and unnecessary hardships, the action avers.

Purged Reds in Exile

LONDON (UP) — A Communist correspondent in Moscow reported today that Georgi Malenkov's accomplices will join him in virtual exile — Vyacheslav Molotov as a foreign ministry "political expert" and Lazar Kaganovich as a factory manager.

Molotov would get a menial job under his own student and former deputy, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, according to the authoritative report published in the Danish Communist Party organ "Land Og Volk."

It said Dimitri Shepilov, ousted from the Communist Party secretariat as a lesser "anti - party" figure, would become a professor.

Earlier, London observers said Malenkov's exile to head a remote power station about 2,000 miles from Moscow had saved him and the rest of the group which had opposed Soviet Communist Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev from a firing squad.

Danish Report

In reporting what happened to the others of the ousted group, the Danish newspaper published in Copenhagen carried the news on its front page. It said it came from "our own correspondent in Moscow."

It said the "bourgeois press might as well save its guesswork".

"That is to say that Molotov is to have a post within the Soviet diplomacy, probably as a political expert and not as an ambassador to a foreign country," it reported.

"According to the information (here), Kaganovich is slated as manager of a building material plant.

"Malenkov has been appointed manager of a power plant in eastern Kazakhstan. And Shepilov is scheduled to take over a position as professor of economics."

Khrushchev Hits Ike's Talk of 'Clean' H-bomb

PRAGUE (UP)—Soviet Communist Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev attacked President Eisenhower today for speaking "stupidities" about a "clean" H-bomb.

"How can there be clean bombs for dirty things?" he asked.

Khrushchev also hinted that he will meet again soon with Yugoslavia's President Tito, one of the leaders of the policy of "independent socialism" free from Moscow control.

The burly Khrushchev, in an off-the-cuff speech at the "Stalingrad" metal works here during the current visit to Czechoslovakia by him and Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, also promised the Soviet bloc outside Russia that "we won't criticize you if you don't criticize us."

On the H-bomb, he was critical of President isenhower's statement last week that American scientists hope to perfect an H-bomb free from radioactive fallout dangers.

"Eisenhower is a man of principle and integrity but look what stupidities he says when he speaks of a clean hydrogen bomb," Khrushchev said. "How can there be clean bombs for dirty things? Bombs mean wholesale annihilation of children and women.

"What a contradiction to call dirty things clean?"

Ellender — Russell

CIVIL RIGHTS IS ISSUE — Sen. Richard Russell huddles with Sen. Allen Ellender on the controversial Civil Rights bill which is before the Senate. Senator Russell met yesterday with President Eisenhower about the measure.

Ike Ready to Amend His Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower is willing to amend his civil rights bill to allay any fears troops will be used to force school integration in the Souths, Republican sources said today.

But as of now he will not make any further concessions to southern foes of the legislation, these sources told the United Press This ruled out acceptance of a so-called jury-trial amendment which Dixie senators are demanding.

The Senate moved into its fourth day's debate with an 800-page issue. Leaders scheduled a long session in hopes of reaching a vote early next week on the preliminary motion to consider formally the House-approved administration civil rights bill.

Long Sessions Seen

Leaders warned sessions may get longer — possibly running round-the-clock.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S C.) held the floor at the start of today's debate with an 800 page speech charging the bill would engender "the worst hatred this nation has ever seen since the Civil War."

He began reading the long speech late Wednesday, yielding so the Senate could quit for the night only when assured he would have the floor again today. He planned a "complete explanation" of the bill followed by a detailed history of trial by jury from the year 1066 to the present.

Eisenhower's single concession fell far short of the compromise some southerners want. Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), who conferred for 50 minutes Wednesday with Eisenhower, told newsmen opponents hoped all of part three would be knocked out of the bill.

What Part Three Is

Part three would give the government authority to seek injunctions or other civil court action to thwart conspiracies to deprive persons of civil rights. It embodies sections of the Ku Klux Klan Act of the reconstruction period. Senate foes contend it would empower the President to use troops to force racial integration in schools and other public places in the South.

Administration supporters deny there is any real basis for the charge. But Eisenhower is willing to add some clarifying language to put an end to the charge, GOP sources said.

Bids for Drilling At Brownsville Bridge Revealed

Plans for the construction of a new inter-county high level bridge at Brownsville were advanced yesterday with the announcement that the Tinney Drilling Co., of Grafton, W. Va., underbid three other firms for a contract to make core drillings.

N. G. Bell, state Highways Department district engineer in Uniontown, said the bid will be sent to Harrisburg for final approval. If accepted, the company will be officially awarded the contract and drilling will begin the week of July 21 and end about mid-August.

The purpose of core drilling, Bell stated, is to learn the rock formation on which the structure will be built.

"As soon as the results are known," he said, "the sub-structure will be designed." This includes footings, piers, abutments and wings.

Supreme Court Says U. S. Can Turn Over GI

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that the U. S. has a right to deliver GI William S. Girard to Japan for trial.

The ruling came in a five-page, unsigned opinion by the eight-judge bench.

Japan will try Girard on its lightest manslaughter charge, for causing the death of a woman who was scavenging metal on a firing range last Jan. 20.

The court said the narrow issue was whether the Constitution or legislation prevented carrying out the arrangement between the United States and Japan for trying soldiers who violated the laws of both

"We find no constitutional or statutory barrier to the provision (of the agreement) as applied here," the opinion said.

"In the absence of such encroachments, the wisdom of the arrangement is exclusively for the determination of the executive and legislative branches."

Ruling Reversed

The opinion carried as an appendix an affidavit on the facts of the case sworn to by Robert Dechert, general counsel of the Defense Department. This had been kept secret in the district court here which first heard the case.

The U.S. District Court ruled June 18 that the government had no legal right to turn Girard over to a Japanese court for trial because his alleged offense was committed on duty. District Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy ordered Girard given an Army court martial.

The Supreme Court reversed Mc Garraghy's basic ruling, but affirmed his denial of a writ of habeas corpus which would have forced the government to bring Girard home, out of reach of Japanese prosecution.

Cites Agreement

The Supreme Court pointed out that it decided many years ago that "a sovereign nation has exclusive jurisdiction to punish offenses against its laws committed within its borders, unless it expressly or impliedly consents to surrender its jurisdiction"

The opinion further noted that Japan's cession to the U.S. of jurisdiction to try American military personnel for conduct which violates the law of both countries was conditioned by an agreement.

This agreement said authority of the state having primary jurisdiction "shall give sympathetic consideration to a request from the authority of the other state for a waiver of its rights in cases where the other state considers such waiver to be of particular importance"

This was the provision under which the U.S government agreed to turn over Girard to Japan. And this was the particular provision to which the court found no constitutional or legislative barrier.

Among those selected were Rose Trozzo, of Belle Vernon, and Mike Smeda, of R. D., Fayette City.

Moslem Religious Leader, Aga Khan, Dies at Age 79

VERSOIX, Switzerland UP) — The Aga Khan died today at the age of 79, ending a fabulous career as Moslem religious leader, millionaire sportsman and former father-in-law of Rita Hayworth.

He died of a heart attack.

He may be succeeded by Prince Aly Khan as spiritual leader of 10 million Moslems of the Ismailia sect who showed their devotion each ten years by weighing him in gold, platinum or diamonds.

Aga Khan

To the West the Aga Khan was an aristocratic playboy and horse breeder, a friend of kings. To the East he was almost a god, revered by millions.

Estimates of his wealth ranged up to more than a billion and a half dollars but when queried about his great holdings he only laughed.

He had been ill for the past few years, and his condition worsened a few months ago. During the recent European heat wave he was brought to his mountain villa here in hopes the coolness would save his life.

But he steadily worsened, and this morning five doctors announced that his condition had seriously weakened during the night. The bulletin—the first issued—was the first confirmation of the fact he lay near death.

Prince Aly and his younger brother Sadruddin were summoned from Geneva shortly after midnight when the end appeared near. Aly was in Geneva with his daughter Princess Yasmin, daughter of Rita Hayworth, for a visit with "grandpa."

Three Teenagers Held in Beating Of County Man

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP) — Three Greensburg district teenagers were free under $2,000 bond each today pending grand jury action on charges growing out of the beating of a Jeannette man following an argument in a Greensburg restaurant last Sunday.

Alderman Henry Frederickson ordered John Lopes, 18, Jeannette, held under bond for aggravated assault and battery; Joseph Hoak, 18, Greensburg, for malicious mischief and surety of the peace, and Stanley White, 19, Arona, for assault and battery and surety of the peace.

The victim of the alleged attack, Lawrence L. Harrold, 26, testified at the hearing that he had stopped at the restaurant with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. James Seslar. A gang of seven youths, he said, made insulting remarks and an argument ensued.

Harrold said the youngsters followed him when he drove to the home of his father-in-law, Robert Tobias. He said that while Hoak held Tobias at bay with a knife, he was punched by White and knocked to the street. Lopes was accused of beating Harrold's head on the pavement.

The four other youths involved in the case were turned over to juvenile authorities.

District to Practice 'Real Thing' Tomorrow in Air Raid Test Alert

Monessen district residents, along with the rest of the nation, are asked to "suppose" tomorrow that enemy bombers launched a massive attack on different points about the United States and to take appropriate measures that might save their lives.

The "dry run" in which Monessen area residents will be asked to "take cover" at the proper signal, will be part of a three-state segment of the nationwide drill in which Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey will take part.

Primary purpose of the drill will be to provide members of the general public opportunity to actually practice basic self-protection measures, namely to listen for and react appropriately to public sounding of standard public action signals.

The drill will be held during daylight hours, but its exact time will not be announced in advance of the time it actually takes place. The "timing" of the drill will be governed by official State Council of Civil Defense declaration of warning conditions.

Immediately on official declaration of notification of the first warning, which will take place late in the morning, all Monessen district civil defense organizations will instantly inaugurate public sounding of the long, steady "Alert", or "Attention", signal on local sirens, horns or whistles Public sounding of that "Alert", or "Attention", signal will be accompanied by the public dissemination of an emergency message.

The start of the drill, late tomorrow morning will be marked by official State Council of Civil Defense notification of warning "Alert". CD participation will continue until midnight.

Throughout the entire period of the CD drill, only those civil defense organizations which receive notice of nuclear attack will act, or "play the role of", bombed communities. All other organizations will act primarily "in support of" the bombed communities when required.

Any civil defense organization which does not receive specific information to the effect that it has suffered direct damage from nuclear attack will proceed under the assumption that the area under its immediate jurisdiction has not been, and will not be, a direct point of theoretical enemy attack.

Upon public sounding of the "Take Cover" signal on local sirens, horns or whistles, all members of the public will be expect-

Washington County Politicos Wage Feud

A long smoldering political fued between Washington County's treasurer and controller today promised to touch off a full-scale investigation into the county's shaky financial position.

Treasurer Harvey Stuart, irritated by criticisms from Controller Peter Elish, has asked the county commissioners for an open meeting to examine the financial problem.

Stuart said he is concerned over "unbudgeted" expenses. He wants the commissioners to spell out his liability in such cases.

The latest squabble between Elish and Stuart, both Democrats, apparently originated when Elish stated that the treasurer's office had errored in computing his personal property tax.

Stuart admitted a clerical error "involving two dollars", but he had lots more to say, too

The treasurer claimed that expenditures involved in cleaning the exterior of the courthouse and payment of redevelopment office personnel was not included in the 1957 budget.

He indicated that the county will be broke by October.

Stuart also plans to complain to the commissioners about salaries.

"Last week the Salary Board granted an increase to members of the Controller's office," said Stuart. "His girls make $257 a month and mine make about $50 less. Now my girls are complaining about the extra hours they must work to process tax returns and I don't blame them. It's not right."

Stuart said he wants to present his complaints to the Commissioners.

"And I want the newspapers to be there," he added.

The Stuart-lish fued dates back to when their positions were re-

Charged to Expenses Of Firm

By ANTHONY E. CANNIFF

HARRISBURG (UP) — Further explanations of why two fur coats were charged to "business expenses" of the Manu-Mine Research and Development Co. were expected today from the firm's president Charles W. Stickler Jr. at the turnpike conspiracy trial.

Under cross - examination Wednesday by prosecution attorneys, Stickler admitted authorizing a $750 company expense for the down payment on a fur coat for his wife. He said his wife paid the remainder of the cost of the coat.

Asked by Deputy Attorney General Vincent G. Panati on what basis he justified charging the amount to the firm, Stickler replied: "It's my company. I'm the principle stockholder."

He also pointed out that his wife, Nellie, is an officer in the firm.

"She is required to be present at various business and social affairs for the corporation, and she has to be as presentable as the other persons there," Stickler told the jury. "I'm only too glad she could have it."

Defense attorneys at that point moved to strike from the record the entire conversation regarding the coat. Although their motion was denied by Judge Homer L. Kreider, the court adjourned for the day before the issue could be pursued further.

Defends Price

Earlier, Stickler defended the price his firm charged the Turnpike Commission for work in connection with the construction of the Northeastern Extension.

The Commonwealth charges the nine defendants, including Stickler and his uncle-by-marriage, former commission chairman Thomas J. Evans, conspired to defraud the commission through the work. The state says Manu-Mine made a 100 per cent profit under the terms of the 1955 contract for drilling into abandoned mines beneath the roadway of the extension where it traverses the northeastern coal regions in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.

Stickler, however, termed the project "a gamble" which the firm took.

"This was not a cost-plus-profit contract," he said. "It was a gamble by Manu-Mine that they could do the work at the price quoted."

He termed a breakdown of the $12.50 price which the firm submitted to the commission showing a 10 per cent profit item "pure estimate."

He said the estimate was based upon "a few holes" drilled by Manu-Mine under an earlier contract for "exploratory" work.

"The few holes we drilled under the exploratory contract was the only basis we had for the estimate," he said. "We had to take a chance on it."

He admitted, however, that the firm did not later submit a revised cost estimate when it was found that the work progressed at a rate four times faster than anticipated.

Denies Rumors He's Candidate

HARRISBURG (UP) — House Speaker W. Stuart Helm (R-Armstrong) today poured cold water on rumors he would be a Republ- when the GOP picks running mates for the election next year.

Helm said he had not "thought" of entering the race and added that "no one has approached me as a possible candidate."

The rumors were spawned here Wednesday after Republican State Chairman George . Bloom announced Helm would reply to charges against the past Legislature over a statewide television network next Tuesday night. The Kittanning businessman will answer Gov. George M. Leader's assertions that the Assembly was a 'do nothing" session.

Charges Steel Increase Wrong

WASHINGTON (UP) — Dr. Edwin G. Nourse believes the recent steel price increase was "undesirable" and a factor to increase inflation.

He told a Senate judiciary subcommittee Tuesday, however, that the steel industry had shown some "restraint" in the price boost of $6 a ton. Some steel executives, he said, felt a $14 increase was justified.

Tests Show Disease Reported not Polio

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Dr. C. B. Tucker, director of the preventable disease department of the state Health Department, said Wednesday that tests show the disease that struck 4 persons in Johnson City, Tenn. is not polio.

Tucker said tests made from the virus from victims showed that the disease is non - paralytic, probably coxsackie or "echo," both very much like polio.

Valley Forge Park 'Boys' City' Today

VALLEY FORGE, PA. (UP)—Historic Valley Forge Park, where George Washington and his small ragged army huddled during the winter of 1777-1778, became a "boys' city" today with the arrival of 50,000 Boy Scouts for their fourth national jamboree.

Scouts from all over the country and several foreign nations began pouring in on Tuesday by boat, train, plane, bus and automobile to the 1,500 acre site. The final contingent is expected to arrive tonight.

The jamboree, with the theme "onward for God and my country," officially will get underway Friday and run through Thursday, July 18.

The gathering will start with the "roll call of the court regions" and simultaneous section and unit flag-raising ceremonies. In the evening, the mammouth opening ceremony in the main arena will feature demonstrations of scouting skills and a display of fireworks.

The scouts will be divided into 38 sectional camps where they will live in tents, doing their own housekeeping. Other activities include hiking, sight-seeing and displays of exhibits.

Early arrivals to the jamboree spent most of their time roaming the rolling green countryside, snapping pictures and viewing historic landmarks. A delegation of 5,000 scouts was expected to travel to nearby Philadelphia tonight to watch a Philadelphia Phillies-Chicago Cubs twilight night major league baseball double-header.

ed to immediately "take cover". Civil Defense and police forces will bring highway traffic to a halt and will direct people on sidewalks to seek refuge shelter. Scheduled commercial carriers, as well as emergency vehicles, will continue operations.

In Monessen, W. Roy McShaffrey, CD director, said today, all regular and auxiliary police will move to their assigned posts to stop traffic and instruct residents to take cover. The warden division will perform the same tasks.

Monessen school buildings will be activated with medical staffs, including doctors, nurses, nurses aides and first aid groups. Ambulances will report to their assigned medical center and taxicabs will act as radio control for these units.

Church groups will report to their posts in the event that welfare or evacuation problems become necessary, McShaffrey stated.

Fire Department equipment and men will be decentralized to assigned posts for outer fringe area protection and safety.

In asking for public cooperation tomorrow, McShaffrey said:

"City and Civil Defense officials are asking for the full cooperation of the public in tomorrow's test. A severe penalty, covered by a special Civil Defense ordinance, can be levied against persons who wilfully endanger personnel or violate legalized requests."

Allegheny Board For Dropping of Machinery Tax

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Allegheny County Board of Commissioners has advised Gov. George M. Leader it favors his signing of a recently-enacted bill exempting industrial machinery in the county from taxation as real estate.

The commissioners said they were satisfied major industrial firms will continue to pay the levy on existing machinery and thus forestall revenue hardships for communities in the county which derive a large part of their tax income from the levy.

Several communities, headed by Homestead, have announced their opposition to the bill, which would repeal the tax by degrees over a five-year period.

U.S. Steel Corp. and at least five other large companies have made written offers to continue to pay the tax on existing facilities as long as they last, but not on new machinery.

Homestead officials declared the statements were merely "gentlemen's agreements and not in form legally enforceable should industry, or a part of industry, later change policy."

Allegheny County is the only one in the state which still imposes the machinery levy. Opponents of the tax declared it was a deterrent to new industries being attracted to the county.

Government in Arrears on Taxes

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UP)—The federal government is slightly in arrears on its taxes, the city reported today.

The city of Jacksonville billed the U.S. attorney's office here for more than $600 in city taxes that accumulated from 1888 to 1930 before the federal government purchased the land on which the post office stands.

A government spokesman said the statements probably will be forwarded to the attorney general in Washington for "instructions."

Leader Urges Vets to Oppose Defense Slashes

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today called on Pennsylvania's war veterans to oppose cuts in the nation's defense budget, warning that with nuclear warfare "the next Pearl Harbor will become the Pearly Gates."

Leader spoke to thousands of delegates to the 38th annual encampment of the state Veterans of Foreign Wars. Regular business sessions of the three-day convention began today.

The governor said that if the nation falls behind in the nuclear arms race it faces "annihilation." He said it was the "clear duty" of all veterans to make that viewpoint known to "every economy-minded congressman who wants to play Russian roulette with America's safety."

Leader praised the attitude with which World War II veterans picked up the string of daily living on their discharge. But he said "some" veterans have forgotten the lessons they learned during the great conflict.

"Some of the men who won the Purple Heart in defense of American freedoms are now too busy to vote," the governor said. "Some of the men who saw combat are now writing their congressmen to protest the size of the defense budget. Some of the men who waded through the rubble of a dozen bombed cities can't find time to learn about Civil Defense.

"I quite agree with those who would cut the fat out of the national defense budget. But I violently disagree with those who would cut the muscle out of our national defense."

Charitable Gestures

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Shapely actress June Blair took almost everything off when she raised $10,000 for charity by doing a strip-tease. But the last successful bidder had to wait until she returned from her dressing room fully clothed before he could collect her Bikini.

PLANNING ANNUAL COMMUNITY PICNIC — Tuesday, July 30, will be an eventful day, according to plans made by the committee for the annual Monessen Community Picnic at Kennywood Park. The group met yesterday and outlined a program which has indications of being the "best yet." Committe members are Frederic Feldman, George Cieply, Harry McCraw, Tom D'Errico, Michael J. Skirpan, Jr., Carl Chaverin and Larry Doyle. They met yesterday with Curtis Clay, Kennywood official.

Committee Makes Plans for Community Picnic July 30

Better circle Tuesday, July 30, on your calendar.

That's the date of the annual Monessen Community Picnic at Kennywood Park.

At a meeting yesterday, the committee arranging the outing didn't overlook anything. Indications point to an even more successful picnic than last year's — rated the best ever held by the Chamber of Commerce.

The day's lengthy list of activities will get underway at 9:30 a. m., when the first busload of picnickers leaves from the starting point at Fourth St. and Donner Ave. The day will be climaxed with a large-scale free act at the park's Lagoon stage.

Varied Activities

Mixed in between will be varied activities, highlighted by the awarding of $1,000 in merchandise certificates and four free bicycles. A scramble for $25 in pennies and a lollypop hunt will keep the kiddies busy. A ball game featuring Little League teams and a talent show comprised of local residents are also on tap.

Some 30,000 amusement tickets were placed on sale in Monessen yesterday. And you can get them at a bargain rate if you purchase them here rather than at the park. Tickets on sale at various business establishments throughout the city can be purchased at seven for 25 cents. These same tickets sell for six cents each at the park, meaning you will save 17 cents on each strip of seven tickets you purchase in Monessen.

The round-trip bus fare is low, too. Children under 12 can travel to and from the park for 90 cents. Adults can make the round-trip for $1.25. Buses will leave Monessen from 9:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. Return trips will be made from 7 to 10:45 p. m.

Chamber President Charles W. Hagerstrand said the annual picnic "is one civic project where everyone has fun. It gives us all a chance to get together in the most harmonious of circumstances, say hello to our neighbors and remind ourselves of what a fine group of people come from out town of Monessen.

"Don't be a stay-at-home — go to Kennywood," he said. "Make it a family affair, a community affair and a day that you can look back to with happy memories."

Blackmail Suspect Held for Plot In Duquesne

PITTSBURGH (UP) — William A. Krise Jr., 32, West Mifflin railroad worker, faced multiple charges today as the result of an attempt to blackmail a 19-year-old Duquesne girl for $500 under threat of linking her with a divorce action.

Following a hearing Wednesday night, Duquesne Magistrate Regis Helfrich ordered Krise held for the grand jury on charges of impersonating an officer, attempted blackmail and blackmail.

Phyllis White, a secretary, said Krise had telephoned her posing as a private investigator and threatened to involve her as a corespondent in a divorce action unless she paid him $500.

Miss White informed her pastor, the Rev. R. A. Graybill of the Duquesne First Christian Church, of the threat and he called in police.

Duquesne police chief Walter Weir arranged with the girl to make the payment and a trap was set. Under police surveillance, she followed instructions and took a package containing the money to a White Oak parking lot Tuesday night.

A taxicab driver, George Thomas, 32, McKeesport, was seized by officers when he arrived to pick the package. He denied any knowledge of the plot and told officers he had been hired to make the pickup by Krise.

Krise was arrested at his home early Wednesday.

Coffee Prices Are Reduced at A&P

A four-cent reduction in its brands of coffee was announced today by A&P stores in this area.

The new retail prices are 79 cents for Eight O'Clock; 85 for Red Circle; 89 for Bokar and 95 for A&P vacuum-pack. In the three-pound package, the coffees offer a saving of 12 cents over the former prices.

A&P announced it was reflecting wholesale market reductions, in line with long established policy.

Official Pop Out

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UP)—Soda pop has been ruled out during working hours for thirsty North Muskegon city officials and employes. Aldermen denied a request for installation of a soft drink vending machine, stating that the "logical but unlikely climax would see the city dispensing beer for its constituents."

Leader Vetoes Extension of Tax Deadlines

HARRISBURG (UP) — Legislation to extend the deadline for the equalization of county real estate assessments to Jan. 1, 1959 has been rejected.

Gov. George M. Leader vetoed the measure late Wednesday, asserting "no good reasons have been advanced for a further postponement of the time limit."

"It is not fair to the counties that have been diligent in complying with the law to place a premium upon procrastination," Leader said in his veto message. "The objectives of the original law are worth while and should not be further delayed."

The measure would have extended the deadline—now set for Jan. 1, next year — outright to seventh and eighth class counties and conditionally to the remaining counties affected by the 1951 law.

Leader also rejected a similar bill which would have granted a flat extension for compliance of one year to Jan. 1, 1959 for fourth to eighth class counties, with no conditional features.

The governor also vetoed measures which would have:

—Required the state Game Commission to pay 16 instead of 10 cents per acre annually to counties for game land. The governor said the proposed 6 cent increase was not equitable because it only applied to the Game Commission and not to the Forests and Waters Department.

—Permitted members of the Public School Employes' Retirement System to receive pension credit for service in private schools and institutions. Leader said the proposal, if enacted, would set a "precedent" for allowing retirement credit for varying and unrelated services beyond the intent of legislation creating the pension system.

—Given additional school subsidies to fourth class school districts where the state owns 60 per cent or more of the land in the district. The governor said the measure "would disrupt" the entire system of state subsidies.

—Prevented communities from charging more than a $75 building permit fee for a single family home and otherwise restricted the increasing of permit fees. Leader described the bill as a "glaring example" of interference with home rule.

—Required that electrical devices sold in the state conform to the standards of the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc. The governor said the bill was unconstitutional.

—Appropriated $2,000 for sending a civilian high-power rifle team to the national rifle matches at Camp Perry, O. Leader objected on the grounds the team performed no governmental function so any appropriation would be unconstitutional.

—Authorized the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission to acquire the "Wolf Academy", in Northampton County, for $2,500. Leader said his veto was because the commission considered the property of purely local rather than statewide historical interest.

CHICAGO (UP)—A Spanish senorita has turned out to be Lady Bountiful for three Chicago youths. The boys, who earn as much as $20 a day serenading passersby on Chicago's night club row, know only one song, "Lady of Spain."

Neff Is Warned By Governor; Expresses Regret

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader said today he has warned Samuel G. Neff, manager of the state Workmen's Unsurance Fund, that dismissal will follow his involvement in any altercation in the future.

Leader spared Neff his $1,500 post after Neff assured him he will apologize to James H. March, publisher of the Beaver Falls News-Tribune, with whom Neff was involved in a fight last May 0.

n a personal letter to the governor, March said Neff spit in his face and knocked him down and asked that he be dismissed from his state post. Neff is the Beaver County Democratic chairman and the two men are bitter political enemies.

The state Justice Department conducted an investigation of the altercation on Leader's request. Today, without making public the department's findings, the governor issued the following stotement:

The investigation now has been completed and Attorney General Thomas D.) McBride has discussed the Justice Department findings with me.

This is essentially a personal matter, yet neither man has brought the case into court for a legal settlement.

'Mr. Neff has assured me that he is sending a letter to Mr. March expressing regret that the altercation occurred.

"I have made it plain to Mr. Neff that any participation by him in future altercations will lead to his immediate dismissal as manager of the state Workmen's nsurance Fund."

Presbyterian Church Manse to Be Repaired

The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Monessen last night authorized extensive repairs to the manse, which is adjacent to the church building on McKee Ave. at Sixth St.

The board of trustees was authorized to award a contract to the Haury Construction Co. to apply aluminum siding, to replace the roof of the home and to make other minor repairs.

The same firm will install curbing and light wells on the east side of the church building itself.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UP) — American comedian Red Skelton arrived here today on the first leg of a tour that will give his 9-year-old son, Richard, who is suffering from an incurable disease, a look at the wonders of the world.

The Skelton family flew here after making a brief stopover in Copenhagen. With Skelton on the polar flight from Los Angeles were his wife, 10-year-old daughter Valentina, and Richard, who is suffering from leukemia, a fatal blood disease.

Rosalie Skirpan Mrs. Culp Mr. Culp

OFF TO 'MISS UNIVERSE' CONTEST — Rosalie Culp left last night to represent Pennsylvania in the Miss Universe contest at Long Beach, Calif. Before departing from Monessen, she was given a sendoff at a party by the City and Chamber of Commerce. She was accompanied to the airport by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Culp, Michael J. Skirpan, Jr., program chairman, and a caravan of local residents. The crowd in the background wished her bon voyage.

Rosalie Culp Honored at Dinner

Monessen City and Chamber of Commerce officials honored Rosalie Culp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Culp, 443 East Schoonmaker Ave., at a farewell dinner party last night at Park Casino.

Miss Culp, who won the title "Miss Pennsylvania" in an official Miss Universe contest held June 18 at Baden, left last night from Greater Pittsburgh Airport for Long, Beach, Calif., where she will compete in the international competition.

The dinner was arranged by the Chamber of Commerce with Michael Skirpan Jr., who served as toastmaster, as general chairman. Honored guests were Miss Culp, her parents and her brother, John.

The guest list included representatives of various men's and women's service clubs. These were introduced by Skirpan, and George Cieply, manager of the Chamber, introduced the others in attendance.

Francis Crum, who represented Mayor Hugo Parente, spoke briefly in behalf of the City and presented Miss Culp with a check. A similar gift was presented to her by Charles Hagerstrand, president of the Chamber, who recounted some of the recent honors brought to Monessen by its residents.

High School Principal Henry Furio, who asked the invocation and benediction, spoke in behalf of the School District.

Miss Culp and her mother were presented with corsages and the former also received many individual gifts. She expressed her thanks.

After dinner the guests formed a motorcade honoring, "Miss Pennsylvania." State Policeman Joseph A. Savo provided the escort which preceded the car in which the guest of honor was riding. After a brief parade through Monessen the caravan proceeded to the airport.

Samuel L. Piccinini, of Baden, sponsror of the state contest, his general foreman, Baldo Paterline, formerly of Belle Vernon, and Marty DeJoe, official Miss Universe Pageant director joined the local party at the Ambassador's Club at the airport until the arrival of the plane.

Miss Culp was presented with a bouquet of yellow roses by Skirpan as she boarded the plane with more than 20 other contestants.

The local people met some of the other title winners including Miss Connecticut, Miss New York, Miss Alaska, Miss New Jersey, Miss Israel, Miss Germany, Miss Peru, Miss Iceland, Miss West Virginia and others.

Upon their arrival in Long Beach the girls will each be assigned a chaperone. They will then be groomed for the programs in which they will take part. On the day named for each girl to indicate in her attire the section of the country which she represents, Miss Culp will wear the helmet, glasses and other attire of the steel worker.

The Secret of Ike's Leadership

ONE of the secrets (if that's the word for it) of President Eisenhower's great popularity with the American people has been the degree to which he embodies, on most national problems, the common sense of the country.

This is not the same as the ability, which many clever poltiicians have, of gauging the currents of public opinion and adjusting himself accordingly. Mr. Eisenhower has very firm basic convictions and is no weathervane.

But he does, at the same time, possess this wonderful capacity for discovering the common denominators in public controversies. And it enables him in many situations to speak effectively for the average American, who is apt himself to be, as Mr. Eisenhower is, a man of good will and high principles.

Add to this the President's well known dedication to what he believes to be right for the nation, and you have a truly national leader whose support cuts across party and sectional and other lines of division in the population. You have, in short, a man who, on the ticket of the minority party, can win a presidential election by nearly 10 million votes.

THE ABOVE is prelude to our opinion that President Eisenhower, on what is perhaps the greatest domestic issue of our times, again is speaking and acting as the great national leader he is.

We refer, of course, to the problem of the Negro and his citizenship, which includes such matters as the education of his children in the public schools and his inalienable right to vote.

President Eisenhower takes the pragmatic approach to this problem, as he does to most controversies. He begins with the recognition that there must, at some stage, occur an accommodation of the conflicting positions on the basis of underlying principles. And he goes on from there to seek the common denominator without sacrificing the principles.

So the President has said, on the subject of racial integration in the public schools: this is the law of the land; this we must do. We will act patiently in making the adjustments necessary in local customs. We will use reason and law without force. But the principle that an American child is entitled to admission to a public school without regard to the color of his skin must in the end prevail.

Mr. Eisenhower is now taking a similar position on the question of voting rights. His administration has introduced a bill in Congress (it has already passed the House) which gives the Attorney General new powers to protect the right of the Negro to vote in those states and localities where that constitutional right is now denied.

This measure is being bitterly resisted in the Senate by the minority of Democratic senators from the South — exactly the same forces which oppose integration in the public schools.

But the President is saying, quietly and simply: Our Constitution says the citizen's right to vote may not be obstructed. We must have a law that makes the Constitution mean what it says. In the writing of this law we will, as a matter of course, give heed to those who have suggestions for making it fair and workable. Compromises as to methods are not ruled out. But in the end the basic principle must prevail: the citizen's right to vote must be protected.

MR. EISENHOWER'S attitude in these matters is not, of course, pleasing to the zealots at extreme philosophical ends of these controversies. There are those who would have him go much farther and act more forcefully and directly. And there are those who would have him adhere to the status quo.

But if we can judge the temper of the average American, he is finding President Eisenhower's attitude and approach pretty much in tune with his own. The average citizen neither asks nor expects miracles to be performed where social changes on a vast scale are in the making. He knows that mountains are moved by inches over decades and not by miles overnight.

Reasonable men like Dwight Eisenhower want and expect America to make steady and discernible progress towards the fulfillment of the nation's great ideals, including especially those given expression in the Constitution.

Moreover, reasonable men believe that such progress can be made without violence and by voluntary accommodation of conflicting views.

This, it seems to us, is the common denominator of this great national problem with which we are wrestling. And it is splendidly espoused by President Eisenhower.

Pennsylvania's Turnpike affair is now qualified as a high class scandal. A mink coat has been mentioned in the testimony.

Young vandals are reported to be destroying school property in Monessen. If this is fun, they should try breaking the windows in their own homes.

Merry-Go-Round—

Zhukov May Come To See Ike

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One thing you can expect to come out of the crisis in the Kremlin is a visit by Eisenhower's old wartime friend, Marshal Zhukov, to Washington.

Mr. Pearson

It has been known that the President has been talking for some time about inviting Marshal Zhukov to the United States. He felt that the former Russian commander in Berlin was a man who would understand straight - from - the - shoulder old soldier talk. And the President, as an old soldier, cherishes as his dearest ambition the hope of bringing peace to the world.

In the past, however, State Department and Central Intelligence advisers have discouraged an invitation to Marshal Zhukov. They said he wasn't important enough in the Soviet set-up.

Now things have changed. Zhukov has been elevated to the Presidium, has thrown his weight behind Khrushchev, is one of the top men in the Kremlin. He could now be invited to Washington as Russian Minister of Defense without any necessity of a return visit by Eisenhower, as would be the case with Khrushchev and Bulganin.

So don't be surprised if Marshal Zhukov comes to Washington.

News Nuggets

Another Mellon — The White House secretly sounded out the late Andrew Mellon's nephew, Richard K. Mellon, about following in his uncle's footsteps as Secretary of the Treasury. Andrew Mellon served in the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover cabinets. Outgoing Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey recommended the Mellon heir as his successor. But Richard balked. He wasn't ready to take on the job yet, he said... Mellon has been doing a fine job for the rejuvenation of his home town — Pittsburgh — in cooperation with Mayor David Lawrence, Democrat.

Nonsmoking Cabinet — It won't please the tobacco companies, but a majority of Ike's cabinet has sworn off cigarettes. Following the American Cancer Society's alarming report on smoking, the President asked his cabinet how many still smoked. Only four admitted they did: Secretary of Defense Wilson, Attorney General Brownell, Secretary of Labor Mitchell and Secretary of Interior Seaton. The remaining six members, plus Vice President Nixon, claimed they don't smoke. Ike said he handed his last pack to a friend several years ago and hasn't touched a cigarette since.

Pentagon Censorship — Secretary of Defense Wilson has been blue-penciling his subordinates' speeches. Most often gagged have been Adm. Arleigh Burke, the Navy chief, who has had nine speeches censored, and Secretary of the Army Wilbur Brucker who has had to revise seven speeches, all since the first of the year. Wilson ordered them bluntly to change their speeches or throw them away. Burke has had trouble before. He was head of the secret Navy propaganda office "Operation 23," set up to work against the Air Force. As a result, President Truman refused to promote him, finally did so after great pressure from the naval lobby.

Musical Congressman

Rep. Carroll Kearns of Pennsylvania, the musical Congressman, has left on his final trip as a flying guest conductor. This time he will direct the Air Force Symphonic Band in Japan.

Kearns is a second cousin of Irish tenor John McCormack, used to sing with the Chicago Opera Company and is the only member of Congress holding a doctor's degree in music. He is now making his fourth trip abroad to win friends for the United States.

He will tour Japan with the band, then conduct two indoor performances in Tokyo, plus a stadium concert for an audience of 100,000 and a matinee in a Tokyo park for 200,000 kids.

President Eisenhower, saying goodbye to the GOP Congressman, asked him to convey his best wishes, and "those of everybody in the United States, to our friendly neighbors in Japan.

"I think these cultural ventures are the finest thing we do," said Ike. "They're the right kind of gospel."

"I'm thrilled to be going, Mr. President," replied Kearns. "Incidentally, I enjoyed my breakfast with you the other morning. I think your breakfasts have done a lot to advance your program on the Hill."

Kearns then referred to a battle that had taken place in the House Education and Labor Committee between Chairman Graham Barden (D., N.C.) and Labor Secretary James Mitchell. Each had accused the other of stalling on labor legislation.

"Barden gave Mitchell a hard time, Mr. President," said Kearns, "but Mitchell took care of himself beautifully."

Oh Grave, Where Is Thy Victory?

Today and Tomorrow—

The Purge of the Stalinists

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The purge of Molotov and the five other high Soviet officials has been made public in two stages. In the first, there was an official communique which charged them with opposing the reforms which have been adopted since the death and degradation of Stalin. In the second, they are being charged with offenses that are capital crimes and could make them liable to trial and execution.

Mr. Lippmann

Apparently the Soviet Union has not as yet reached the point in its political development where it can adopt a new policy without destroying the men who stood for the old policy. That point had not been reached among the great powers of Western Europe until about the end of the 17th Century. There is much which suggests that the Soviet Union, which belongs to the 20th Century in its technological development, is in its constitutional practice backward by about 300 years.

The official explanation of the purge is plausible enough if we read it within the framework of the primitive political theory that a disagreement on important matters can be solved only when the losing faction has been destroyed. It is a recent and very advanced idea that there can be, indeed that there ought to be, such a thing as a loyal opposition.

Molotov Condemned

At the level of policy Khrushchev's complaint against Molotov is that he has become a narrow-minded and cantankerous old fogey. As such, he has made himself the leader of a faction in a state where factionalism is a crime, is treason against the sacred deposit of Leninism and the laws of the revolution.

Molotov has, says the communique, been "at variance with the party line", which means not merely that he has voted against it but that he has been conspiring against the party. He has "failed to see the new conditions, the new situation" which has existed since the death of Stalin. He has taken "a conservative attitude", clinging to "obsolete forms and methods of work that are no longer in keeping with the interests of the advance toward Communism."

Thus in domestic affairs Molotov has opposed the policy of appeasing the national feelings of the constituent republics. He has been opposed to the decentralization of the industrial machine. He has been opposed to offering the peasants greater economic rewards, and he has been opposed to the agrarian policy which aims at more production of milk, butter and eggs.

In foreign policy, Molotov "showed narrow-mindedness and hampered in every way" measures "to erase international tensions". He opposed the Austrian Treaty. He opposed the "normalization" of relations with Japan. He opposed improved relations with Tito. He opposed the good will missions which Bulganin and Khrushchev have been making to foreign countries.

Khrushchev in Control

While the size and fury of the purge indicate that the Stalinists' opposition to Khrushchev has been formidable, we can be reasonably certain that for some time to come Khrushchev's new policies will prevail. He will attempt to govern the Soviet Union not, of course, with the active consent of all its peoples but, with sufficient leniency and favor to win their passive assent. He believes he can do this, as he said on Saturday in a speech at Leningrad, by "catching up with the United States of America" not in its constitutional development but — "in industrial production per capita of population" and "in the production of meat, milk and butter."

He will attempt also to consolidate what he calls the Communist camp — the collection of countries which extends from North Korea and China and North Viet Nam on the Pacific to East Germany and the line of the Iron Curtain. There, he will turn away from Stalinism, which regards this vast territory as an empire with its capital in Moscow; he will turn toward the kind of federated association of national Communist states, with the Soviet Union as the senior partner.

Stability Sought

When we ask ourselves what this is likely to mean in our relations with Russia, we shall do best, I think, to regard the Khrushchev reforms as aimed at stabilization and within the Soviet Union and within the Communist orbit. Khrushchev believes that Stalinism, stubbornly and relentlessly pursued, would have made the Communist world unmanageable. It would have led to the kind of internal convulsion which, it appears is what Mr. Dulles has been hoping and waiting for. Khrushchev's efforts are an attempt to save Communism from this disaster, and to provide it with a basis in nationalist and popular feeling on which it can maintain itself and endure.

This may well prove to be an historic change. But we must be careful not to confuse a change of policy within the Soviet Union with the hope that Khrushchev is now going to agree with us about Germany and Korea and Formosa and the like. Almost surely, the change makes it more than ever unlikely that the Soviet Union will undertake itself, or promote among its satellites, an overt military aggression. But on the other hand, this does not mean that they are likely to make the kind of concession which our German policy demands of them.

The probability is that the international effect of the Khrushchev reforms will be to reduce certain of the weaknesses within the Soviet Union, and thus to promote not agreement and not a settlement but, peaceful coexistence.

Behind The News—

Zhukov Moves up to Greater Influence

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Soviet Russia appears to have acquired a new chief co-equal in its collective leadership.

Nikita S. Khrushchev has been recognized as the chief co-equal since Georgi M. Malenkov was ousted as premier in 1955.

Mr. McCann

Now Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov seems to have moved in beside Khrushchev as chief co-equal No. 2.

That implies that until there is another blow-up in Soviet leadership, Khrushchev and Zhukov will direct policy in both domestic and foreign affairs.

There are 13 other co-equals in the enlarged ruling Presidium of the Russian Communist Party. Both Khrushchev and Zhukov will be top men.

Controls Political Machine

Khrushchev's strength lies in the fact that as chief secretary of the Communist Party he controls the party political machine.

Zhukov's strength lies in the fact that as defense minister and Russia's outstanding soldier he controls the army.

It has become clear that Georgi M. Malenkov, Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Lazar M. Kaganovich nearly succeeded in ousting Khrushchev at a meeting of the presidium last month. They had the support of two other members. It is reported that Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin was wavering between the Malenkov faction and the Khrushchev faction. Had he gone with Malenkov, the anti - Khrushchev men would have had six of the votes in what was then an 11-man presidium.

Khrushchev saved himself partly because, as first secretary, he was able to force a meeting of the full 125-man central committee of the Communist Party Khrushchev had a big majority in that.

But it is being said, apparently correctly, that Zhukov played the decisive part. He is reported to have come out fully in support of Khrushchev in the presidium, and to have emphasized that the army was with him.

Regarded As Conservative

Zhukov is regarded as a conservative man, who as a soldier knows fully the catastrophe Russia would face in event of a third world war and who is inclined to be as friendly with the Western countries as a dedicated Communist can be.

Zhukov and President Eisenhower became good friends when, as supreme commanders of the Russian and Allied armies, they were in Berlin together after the end of World War II. They even entered into a brief correspondence later. It was suggested that Zhukov might play a big part in easing East-West tension.

Only time will tell whether Zhukov will work for better relations with the United States and its allies. Time will tell also how well Zhukov and Khrushchev can get along together, and whether it might occur to Zhukov that he would like to be the sole No. 1 co-equal and thus get into a battle with Khrushchev for leadership.

At the White House—

Ike Chooses Seashore

By PATRICIA WIGGINS

WASHINGTON (UP) — Backstairs at the White House

Although Cape Cod's Oyster Harbors has been ruled out in favor of Coaster's Harbor Island off Newport, R.I., for the President's vacation, Eisenhower still is likely to visit there "if and when" his work-play holiday begins.

One reason is that the President's good friend Cliff Roberts, a New York investment broker, has rented a house at Oyster Harbors — just a nice boat-ride away from Newport — and has invited the President up for a visit.

A second reason is that exclusive Oyster Harbors boasts what has been described as the best golf course in New England.

The White House has made no secret of the fact that golf was one of the over-riding considerations in the President's vacation spot selection. The Newport golf course and the Navy base communication facilities at Coaster's Harbor were deciding factors in selecting the Rhode Island site.

The selection of the Newport site caused a blossoming of maps and literature in the White House press room. Newsmen, who will be quartered in a Newport hotel, were intrigued particularly by a section in Cleveland Amory's 'Last Resorts," a volume about the heyday days of Newport and other social watering spots.

Amory describes one Newport dinner given by society matron Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. White sand was sprinkled down the center of the table and each guest was given a miniature silver bucket and shovel. At a given signal, all dug into the centerpiece, and found thousands of dollars worth of rubies, diamonds and other precious gems.

Mrs. Eisenhower is said to have had quite a bit to do with the President choosing a sea and sand vacation this year.

According to some sources, she put her foot down firmly on mountain spots or other sites where "roughing it" would be in order. Trout fishing in mountain streams is another presidential favorite.

She apparently won out on the seaside vs. mountain debate, an annual affair in millions of other American homes.

The Lighter Side—

Rhus Toxicodendron

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)— Brothers and sisters, hear me now. So you're going on a vacation? All right, go, but listen to the voice of sad experience. Namely, mine.

Take rod and reel, if you will. Take tent and mosquito net and whatever implements you judge will help you tame the great outdoors, but take also this—caution in the presence of rhus toxicodendron.

Lack of acution will get you the bleariest mess of bilious exterior this side of the horrors of hades. That is, unless you're a newborn babe and according to some medicos, resistant to the ravages of Rhus T. — which is the scientific name for poison ivy.

Better Beware

Everybody else had better beware. You may think you're immune. That's what I thought all my life, up until last month. Brother...what a total disillusionment. I say total because during my bout with poison ivy the poison reached a totality of spread over my beautiful pink body.

Immobility set in. For two weeks, I was a mottle of itchy decorum. While thus pinned down, you have plenty of time to think. When you have poison ivy, you think about only one thing—your own itching.

Well, what kind of sensation is it? Widespread poison ivy is an army of angry ants goosestepping across your skin to a rock 'n' roll beat. It feels the way burning leaves sound. It is a terrible thirst that slakes itself in Tabasco. It is a myraid of tiny explosions like popcorn endlessly popping.

No Scratching Allowed

It is the supreme example of the kind of sensation that sets afire the desire to scratch. But with poison ivy you're not supposed to scratch. Mustn't touch. Scowl and bear it.

That brings us to the complex of the large itch that isn't scratched. When a massive, total itch is denied the historic remedy of the scratch, it gets moody and turns inward on itself. Ten thousand demons are set loose at skin level. Panic grows.

You get the cold sweats in reverse. Crawling chills and underskin shivering rattle your frame.

Just thought you'd like to know how it feels. Had a wonderful time on vacation. Wished you were there—instead of me.

MHS Ticket Price Valley Standard

Raising the reserved seat ticket price for the coming MHS football season was not too surprising a development as most valley schools have previously upped the ante to $1.25 per game. Only Brownsville and Redstone have held the line at $1.00. The main reasan for the Brownies and 'Hawks keeping their prices down, stems from the "tight" financial situation in that section of Fayette County with the mines shutting down frequently. In fact, agitation up there is for REDUCED prices rather than an increase. Actually, season ticket holders here get a bargain with a season ducat (they weren't raised) selling for $5, a saving of $1.25 over individual purchases per game.

Monongahela High School officials and the school board there are literally tearing their hair out these days and you can hardly blame them. When the spacious new gym was constructed there three years ago the floor buckled soon after completion. Repairs were rushed, however, and everything was fine until last month when lightning struck the huge chimney on the side of the gym crashing part of it through the gym roof allowing rain to pour in and now the floor has buckled again. Corrective measures are being taken to prevent further buckling . . . The Nemacolin Country Club's new pool will be dedicated this coming Sunday. When it is officially opened for swimming, Tom Dent, son of Dr. and Mrs. Aland C. Dent of Fayette City and Jim Bates, of Ocean City, N. J., now taking a special summer course at CSTC, will be the life guards. Both are crack swimmers.

Pavella Almost Breaks Own Mark

Nemacolin Country Club's new pro, Mike Pavella, came as near as a golfer can come to setting a new record at Nemacolin course Sunday but had to settle for tying his old course mark when a 10-foot putt rimmed the cup but refused to drop. What he had to settle for wasn't bad, though — he shot a 64 — eight under par. He had previously set the record in 1948 . . . Penn State should have a whale of a baseball team again in a few years if present plans of several of Monongahela's 1954 National Championship PONY League squad members materialize. Star hurler Eddie Kikla has already signified intentions of attending the Nittany school and pals Rich Sacane, Butch Peters and several others are reportedly headed that way.

Add unusual baseball calls — A balk was called on a pitcher at Van Voorhis recently with no one on base. The hurler's foot became lodged on the pitcher's rubber and rather than throw the ball off balance and perhaps strike and injure someone, the pitcher held it. The umpire promptly called "balk" and the batter was ordered down to first base on an 'illegal pitch' . . . The Milwaukee Braves have signed a former Elizabeth High star athlete who later played for Clairton and Manning Spelman in the Daily News League, Richard Shrigley. He has been assigned to Class A Jacksonville of the South Atlantic League. Shrigley is also a Presbyterian College grid star.

Honor for Greyhound Netter

Jim Baker, Monessen High tennis standout, has been selected as one of the "ball boys" for the upcoming Wightman Cup, international matches at the Pittsburgh Edgewood Club. The event will take place on August 13-14. . . . Fans at a Daily News League game the other night contributed $170 to aid a Port Vue player, Alvin Winkelvos, who was beaned two weeks ago and remains in critical condition in Mercy Hospital . . . If many more Western Pennsylvania athletes matriculate at Duke University they'll have to change the name of the school. No less than nine district gridders will attend the Blue Devil school this fall.

Today's Sports Parade—

Large Number of ML Hurlers Getting Lumps

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—It's back to chuck and duck again today for an unusual number of major league pitching stars who are seeing them this season.

Two of the big names of the mound — Robin Roberts and Mike Garcia — are getting an unaccustomed number of lumps this season and the whispers are that they may be far over the other side of the hill.

Such 20-game winners of last season as Don Newcombe, Frank Lary, Bob Lemon, Billy Hoeft, Warren Spahn and Johnny Antonelli are laboring along like selling platers and Lew Burdette, who matched Roberts' 19 victories the last time out, is barely on an even keel.

Other "name" hurlers having a rough go are Bob Friend, Ronnie Kline, Sal Maglie, Clem Labine, Gene Conley, Whitey Ford, Chuck Stobbs and Vinegar Bend Mizell.

The reasons are many and varied, ranging all the way from physical miseries to too much bunny in the baseball.

Roberts Ailing

The Phillies would pay a fat reward to discover just what ails Roberts, a 20-game meal ticket for six years who is only 6-10 at the moment. Garcia, the big bear of the Indians, has been hampered with a sore arm and is only 3-5 while his teammate, Lemon, blames a bad leg for a 5-7 mark.

A tough luck victim, with several close defeats, is Newcombe. A 27-game winner last season to win most valuable player and most valuable pitcher honors, he is only 8-6. Maglie, the wonder man of last season, is a mere 3-2 because of a stiff neck and Labine "lost it" suddenly. Unbeaten from last August to June 13, he has dropped five in a row for a 3-5 mark.

Antonelli, bothered by a stomach ailment for two months, seems to be coming around and should improve on his 7-7 record. Mizell has been a long-time disappointment and won his last two to get up to a mere 3-6.

Lary came on from mid-season last year to lead the American League with 21 wins and will have to do the same to help a 4-11 record. Hoeft, bothered by shoulder trouble, is a lowly 1-4 while Ford had shoulder miseries, too, to account for his 4-1 mark.

Kline, a 14-game winner in 1956, blames severe boils for his 2-11 record while the only way you can account for Friend being at 6-9 is the lack of relief pitching which might have saved him several games.

Spahn isn't too bad at 8-7 but Conley's chronic sore arm has shackled him at 2-4 and Burdette is laboring along at 6-6.

And then there's Stobbs.

The Senator swiftie won 15 games last season but currently has a record of two wins against 12 defeats. It has driven handsome Chuck to the border of insanity because he isn't pitching that badly.

'Big' Sixth Gives Ozarks 5-3 Victory

Neil Hill's Homer With Two on Helps Mitnick to Win

A four-run outburst in the sixth inning—featured by Neil Hill's round-tripper—carried the Monessen Ozarks to a 5-3 win over Donora last night in Mon Valley League action at the losers diamond.

Hill's circuit clout came with two mates aboard and provided Bill Mitnick with all the runs he needed.

Mitnick pitched a solid five hitter, fanning seven.

One of the Donora safeties was a homer by Dave Russell in the closing frame.

The win gave the Ozarks a 13-15 record for the year. Donora's slate now stands at 15-13.

Both teams tallied a run in the first inning last night. A walk, fielders choice and single by Mike Young sent across the Monessen tally.

Donora came right back on an error, infield out and a bingle by Mel Mills.

In the fifth, the home team nudged in front on singles by Russell and Mills and a double by Clyde Horton.

That set the stage for Monessen's big sixth inning. Carl Crawley, Pappy Johnson and Young hit successive singles to account for one run. Hill then leveled his home run blast to produce three more.

Russell tagged a Mitnick fast ball in the final frame to give Donora a consolation marker.

Ravens Tie Eagles For 1st Place

The Ravens eked out a 4-3 win over the Eagles in local PONY League action yesterday to tie for first place as CIO edged the Lions, 2-1.

Three hitters by Ken DiGiacamo and Frank Pastorkovich featured the Ravens' victory, DiGiacamo also aiding in the hitting department with a double, Bass and Mowl contributing two doubles to the Eagles cause but not enough to spell the difference.

Taking a 2-0 lead in the first inning the Ravens lost it when the Eagles plated three markers in the third but came back to tie with one in the fourth and went on to win with one in the sixth.

Eton Karenchak's two-hitter for CIO was too much for the Lions despite Andy Carollo's five-hitter and excellent fielding which saw the losers reel off two double plays.

The winning runs were scored when Kerestes threw a wild ball to first base which permitted the only two CIO runs to score in the first frame. The Lions plated one run in the fifth for their only tally. Ron Arnoldi of the Lions doubled for the only extra base blow of the game.

Both the Lions and Ravens now show 10-5 records.

No games are carded for today or tomorrow but the schedule resumes Saturday with the Ravens battling the Lions, the Eagles going against CIO.

Frank Valla pitched a fine two-hitter for the winners. Offensively, Mike Panich was the star, stroking a home run and two doubles.

Musial Through with Playing Double-bills

By TIM MORIARTY

The St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees received some distressing news today as they prepared to open the second half of their pennant drives.

Stan Musial, with the full approval of manager Fred Hutchinson, announced he has participated in his last double-header for the Cardinals this season, while ace reliever, Bob Grim, is suffering again with a sore arm.

Musial's decision to play only the first game of twin bills for the remainder of the season means his National League record for consecutive games played probably will be snapped Sunday when the Cardinals meet the Phillies in a double-header at Philadelphia.

The 36-year-old first baseman hasn't missed a game since the opening day of the 1952 season, appearing in 861 consecutive contests, but admits those long, drawn-out double-headers are starting to catch up with him.

Talks It Over

"It's been kind of a struggle playing two games in one day," Musial explained as the Cardinals arrived in New York for the opening of a 13-game eastern trip against the Giants. "I felt like I was getting a little tired, so I talked it over with Hutch and we both felt I'd probably be more valuable to the club just playing the first game of double-headers."

The Yankees, meanwhile, learned of Grim's recurrent arm trouble as they prepared to launch a 12-game road trip tonight at Kansas City. The soreness is to the elbow, as in the past. Grim cated in the right forearm, near twice had to be placed on the disabled list, in 1955 and last year, because of this chronic condition.

The big right hander, who won eight games and lost three in helping the Yankees gain a 2½-game lead over the first half of the campaign, is hopeful that the arm "will come around" with a proper rest. As a result, manager Casey Stengel plans to keep Grim out of the three-game Kansas City series with the hope he'll be ready for Sunday's crucial twin-bill against the White Sox at Chicago.

Chisox Entertain Senators

The White Sox, also hit by a recent wave of injuries, swing back into action tonight by entertaining the Washington Senators. Boston is at Detroit for an afternoon game, while Baltimore is at Cleveland for a twilight-night double-header.

Another twilight-night twinbill in the NL pits the Chicago Cubs against the Phillies at Philadelphia. Cincinnati visits Brooklyn and Milwaukee is at Pittsburgh in other arc-lighters.

The second-place Braves fell three games back of pace-setting St. Louis last night by suffering a 5-2 setback at the hands of the Pirates in the only major league action. A two-run, inside-the-park homer by Bob Skinner and a threerun single by Gene Baker carried the Pirates to their fourth straight victory. Bob Purkey allowed only six hits, including a two-run homer by Eddie Mathews, in posting his ninth victory. Bob Buhl was the loser.

Ravens Edge Closer to LL 2nd Half Title

Ravens edged a little closer to the second half title in the American Division of the Little League last night by tripping Page Local, 10-3.

The win gave the Birds a game lead over VFW, the first half kingpin.

Action in both divisions of the Little League will now suspend until after the inter-district playoffs.

Two games were also played in the National League yesterday, but those results had no bearing on the race. The Elks have that second half title wrapped up.

For the record, though, CIO handled the Lions, 6-2, and Legion topped the Elks, 8-3.

Paul Barton pitched the Ravens to their important win, authoring a three hitter while fanning a dozen. Bill Kachmarik paced the Raven attack with a couple of doubles.

Ralph Nuzzaci tossed a one hitter as CIO tripped the Lions 6-2. He fanned nine. The leading union hitter was John Tobar, who had a pair of safeties.

Claude Garry pitched and batted Legion to its win. He tossed steady two hit ball and stroked a homer and two singles.

PNA scored in every inning to clobber MPSA, 15-2 in City Softball League action yesterday. The victors were aided by 14 walks givenup by MPSA hurling.

Joe Gladys with three singles and a homer and George Lovich with two round-trippers paced the winners while Ed Lea was the only batter to enjoy any measure of success for the losers blasting out a double and a single in two trips to the plate. Although Bill Grogan clubbed a three-bagger in the losing cause.

Other wise, Paul Petrusky hurled steady seven-hit ball for the winners.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Negative Thinking

When golfers get into those three-putt slumps, you can bet they're letting their minds wander too far ahead. You can almost hear their minds clicking along worried lines. "What if I hit this one too hard? . . . What if I hit it too easy? . . . What if I pull it or push it too much?"

These are the thoughts that lead to three-putt greens. Are you guilty?

When you're faced with a long putt, think ONLY of that putt. The second putt isn't your present concern; the first one is.

So do your best on the first putt. Try to make it — with the last turn of the ball taking the ball into the hole.

'Hot' Pirates Win Again

Cop Fourth Straight Victory

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, riding a four-game winning streak, meet Milwaukee tonight with Bob Friend slated to pitch as the rejuvenated Buccaneers seek their second straight victory over the second - place Braves.

A parents - night crowd of 28,129 watched Wednesday night as the Pirates waked the Braves, 5-2, on Gene Bakers three - run single in the sixth inning.

With the score tied at 2-2 on one aboard homers by Eddie Mathews of the Braves in the first inning and Pirate Bob Skinner in the fourth, the Pirates loaded the bases in their big sixth.

Braves pitcher Bob Buhl walked Frank Thomas. Dick Groat singled and Skinner got on when first baseman Frank Torre fumbled his grounder. Then Baker drove a skipping ball under shortstop John Logans glove into short left field.

Thomas and Groat, moving on the 3-2 pitch, scored easily. Skinner, coming into third, got the go-ahead signal from coach Danny Murtaugh and dug for the plate. Logan, taking the relay from the outfield, was caught by surprise and Skinner scored.

Earlier in the game, Skinner's speed had tied the game as he turned a long drive to the center field wall into an inside-the-park homer, driving in Thomas who had reached first on a bunt.

Mathews drove his homer into the far right-field stands after Red Schoendienst had looped a single over short.

The victory gave Purkey, whose earned run average leads the league, his ninth triumph against seven losses.

Start of the game was delayed for 15 minutes to permit fans still milling outside the park to enter. The contest was a make-up for a game rained out and the lack of advance sale of tickets jammed the Forbes Field windows.

Adding to the press was the parents - night feature, which brought 9,3089 children to the game. They were admitted at a cut-rate if accompanied by their parents.

Little Paces Braves To Win Over Sox, 11-8

Alfred Little was pretty "big" in the local Minor League yesterday as he led his Braves mates to an 11-8 win over the White Sox.

Not only did the Braves standout help Danny Cosner pitch a seven-hitter at the Sox but he banged out two doubles and a triple in four trips to the plate. He fanned six and walked three during his mound stint.

Cosner also had quite a day at the plate with three hits in five times at bat. Dennis Yankosky and Tommy Rocco also clouted doubles for the winners while Mark Kotys, with a triple, was the only Sox batter to garner a blow going for more than one base. He and Steven Smoke accounted for five of the seven Sox hits, Smoke going three for four.

Today's action finds the Yankees battling the Pirates.

Hilltops Post 5-2 Win Over Sox

John McNavage of the White Sox was practically untouchable in the last five innings of Prep League action against the Hilltops yesterday but the walks and three hits he issued in the first two innings spelled a 5-2 defeat.

All five Topper runs scored in these first two frames but after that McNavage tossed a one-hitter the rest of the way. Meanwhile, John Baker of the Toppers was hurling a five-hitter and allowing only the two markers as he fanned six and walked only two to seven strikeouts and five walks for McNavage.

Four Sox errors greatly hurt their chances.

Action today finds the Blackhawks going against the Rockets.

Baseball Moguls Face Charge of Intimidation

WASHINGTON (UP) — Baseball's bigwigs, already under fire by congressional investigators for alleged monopolistic practices, today faced a possible "intimidation" charge.

Rep. Patrick J. Hillings (R-Calif.) disclosed Wednesday that staff investigators of the House Anti - Trust Subcommittee have started a check to determine if baseball owners and officials are "intimidating" Bob Feller because of his recent critical testimony before a House committee.

The disclosure came about after Feller was prevented from holding a baseball clinic for youngsters in Brooklyn Dodger - owned Wrigley Field in Los Angeles this week.

Bucs' Sisler Has Good Idea On Making All-Star Choices

By JOHN CARROLL

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Hall of Famer George Sisler never had an opportunity to play in an All-Star Game, but he has a pretty good idea how the teams should be picked.

"My playing days were over before they held the first All-Star Game," the Pittsburgh Pirate batting instructor explained.

"Certainly, it would have been an honor. But I still have to disagree with the way the players are chosen.

"Why not let the baseball commissioner and the two league presidents name a standing committee of former major leaguers," Sisler proposed.

"They could even throw in a newspaperman or two, one from each league who sees the players in action every day. Then the committee could sit down and name eight starting players for each squad. The rival managers still could select their pitchers and reserves."

Sisler said under the current system of fan balloting for the starters, the All-Star Game has turned into a popularity contest.

He declined to single out any of the All-Stars who started in last Tuesday's classic at St. Louis, but left no doubt he thought some shouldn't have been in the lineup.

"Sure, baseball's still the fans' game, but in the present setup, they're naturally going to vote for their hometown heroes," he said.

"I honestly feel that we should have had at least three Pirates on the National League team this year. Not necessarily all in starting roles. Why look at that kid (Billy) Mazeroski. He's the hottest second baseman in our league right now.

"And you can't overlook (Dee) Fondy as a first baseman. All the time the All-Star voting was going on, Fondy was leading the league in batting with an average over 350," Sisler added. "And Frank Thomas certainly could have been utilized in a pinch-hitting role".

Sporstmen's Corner—

Summer Practice Aids Fall Hunting Efforts

No matter what the type of firearm, shooting skill acquired through off-season practice promises greater hunting success when the game season rolls around. But there is more to this.

The teen-ager or the adult who plans to go afield with a sporting arm for the first time this fall would be wise to begin shooting this summer, on a range under expert guidance. This is particularly important, say those qualified to advise, in the case of a youngster, whether he fire a gun or a bow. The range is the place to learn the rudiments of accurate shooting and the potentials of hunting arms. And there is where the commandments of safety will also be taught by the instructor and practiced from the start. This will instill caution and hunting stability, important carry-over effects when the novice goes afield later to try his skill on animated targets.

Most hunters retire their sporting arms at the end of the hunting season and forget them until the next fall. However, some sportsmen have to come to know the fun and relaxation summer hunting excursions afford, during which shooting eyes are kept sharp. Using the scatter gun to stop the sly crow on the wing, or the varmint rifle to drop the wary woodchuck, test the shooter's ability and provide exciting sport.

In the warm months archers may engage in tournaments, in which they acquire shooting skill and enjoy competition, meanwhile conditioning themselves for big game hunting later. Some bowmen have become proficient at stalking and shooting woodchucks. Others who have obtained the special equipment to take carp revel in this test of arrow shooting skill.

So choose the firearms that will give year-around pleasure, and learn to shoot them without danger to yourself or the person or property of anyone else. Then for healthful, nerve tonic sport, cash in on the outdoor thrills they offer in this country, where almost anyone may own firearms and enjoy the chase or shoot at flying clay birds or stationary bullseyes.

Want FBI Files on Clinton Case

By WILLIAM TUCKER

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Defense attorneys for 16 men charged with hindering the integration of Clinton, Tenn., high school were expected today to renew their efforts to examine the secret FBI files on the case.

The defense Wednesday succeeded in obtaining one document from the government's pre - trial investigative reports, but Federal District Judge Robert L. Taylor refused a motion to turn over the entire file on the grounds that the motion was "premature."

The government opened its contempt of court case against segregationist John Kasper and 15 Tennesseeans Wednesday, but the third witness called to the stand was almost forgotten in the turmoil touched off by defense requests for the FBI files.

At the court's direction, the prosecutor gave the defense one witness' signed statement to the FBI.

Before the government got started, former U.S. Judge George Washington Williams, for the defense, moved for a mistrial. He said the defense of the 15 from Clinton had not had a chance to prepare itself because it lacked access to the FBI files on the case.

He was using the recent Supreme Court decision in the case of a smelter workers union official, Clinton Jencks, as a precedent. Jencks' conviction on false swearing about Communist ties was reversed because the defense did not have a look at FBI informers' reports.

Taylor overruled the mistrial motion but reserved as "premature" a defense motion that it be accorded FBI records in this case.

Billy Graham Is Peeved at Magazine Editor

NEW YORK (UP) —Evangelist Billy Graham said Wednesday night he was peeved at "a religious magazine that said the money being spent on this New York Crusade to save souls is far too much."

"I wish the editor of that magazine would calculate for me how much he thinks it's worth to save one soul," Graham said, with more than a trace of indignation in his voice.

"The magazine can say what it wants to say. What I know is that Jesus said that if one soul is saved from hell for his kingdom then it's worth the whole world."

Although Graham did not mention the magazine by name, he apparently referred to The Christian Century, an influential Protestant publication that has been highly critical of the evangelist.

Among its most recent charges has been that the million dollars being spent on the Billy Graham New York Crusade is money expended for a cause of doubtful worth.

Graham's taking issue with the "religious magazine" was a rare thing for him. It is his practice to refuse comment on most criticisms against him, on the ground that "there's already too much and I don't want to add to it."

TELESCOPE TO RECORD SOLAR — Arthur J. Reynard (right) and Robert J. Coates, scientists at the U. S. Naval Research Laboratories in Washington, make adjustments on a radio-telescope. Steel Users to Hike Prices of Their Own

NEW YORK (UP) — Steel users, faced with the recent steel price advance, are set to hike the prices on their own products although some may wait a while, a survey by Iron Age Magazine showed today.

The poll of major users by the authoritative trade publication showed that higher costs for other materials and increased wage costs also will enter the pricing picture. Here's what shapes up for individual fields:

Machine Tools: "It's a safe guess" that tools will cost more. One builder was quoted as saying "steel prices aren't the only thing that's gone up by a long shot."

Warehouses: General increases of $8 to $9 per ton for steel can be expected.

Farm Equipment: Prices probably will go up about 5 per cent, possibly more, assuming sales hold up at the present rate.

Appliances: Selected price boosts can be expected in individual lines.

Automotive: Prices will rise, but disguised in "greater value for advanced styling and engineering."

Iron Age reported steel mills still are counting on August for the first signs of a definite upturn in demand for sheet, strip and other "easy" products.

According to the publication, the mills figure the auto companies will be coming through with heavier tonnage orders. In addition, they expect other flat-rolled users to step up their orders after plant vacation shutdowns.

Demand for heavier steel products—structurals, plate and oil country goods — continues strong. "Construction, shipbuilding, freight car building, and oil country activity are expected to buttress the market until other industries come in for the expected last-half upsurge," Iron Age said.

The magazine also said inventory cutbacks are expected to taper off in the third and fourth quarters.

Machinists Walk Off Jobs in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — A dispute involving 159 plants and union machinists threatened today to become the largest lockout in the history of American labor.

The California Metal Trades Assn., representing the plants, urged temployers to close down rather than submit to a piecemeal strike called by the International Association of Machinists.

The IAM is seeking wage increases ranging from 25 to 55 cents an hour, in addition to extensive fringe benefits for its 8000 members. It has rejected an employer offer of a 6 per cent increase this year and a 3 per cent cost of living increase next year.

About 2000 machinists have walked out of eight plants in the San Francisco Bay Area in the past week, leaving another 6000 still working at 15 plants.

The Association on Wednesday urged the remaining 151 member firms to close down. At least 40 of them shut down operations when day shifts ended Wednesday afternoon, an association spokesman said.

Henpecked Tops Heavy Drinkers

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Municipal Judge Robert Clifton says that henpecked husbands top the list of problem drinkers who pass in an endless parade through Los Angeles courts.

Clifton, whose court handles an average of 99,000 drunk cases annually, Wednesday at the annual Institute For Scientific Studies For the Prevention of Alcoholism listed the 'types" of drinkers who get into trouble. Besides henpecked husbands the list included

"Wives who are not appreciated by their husbands; job haters who think they have missed the boat—their great chance in life; the guy who spends more than he makes; and the person who has an inferiority complex."

Dior Wastline Is Hauled Down

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Christian Dior, who 10 years ago dropped the hemline, now has hauled the waistline down.

The French designer, in his New York collection for fall, defined the new silhouette either with low-placed belts or by the cut of dresses and suit jackets.

To go with it, he also made skirts just a bit longer. But no cause for alarm, girls. This time, unlike the drastic lengthening of 1947, skirts are down no more than an inch. Dior's office explained the hemline is "in keeping with the lowered waistline."

For evening, the designer showed hemlines often short in front and long in back.

It is anybody's guess whether the New York wholesale line is a harbinger of what he will show Aug. 1 in his Paris custom collection.

The Dior collection was one of seven designer groups displayed Wednesday for fashion reporters attending shows by the couture group of the New York Dress Institute.

Sometimes Dior's lowered waistline is more in the "feeling" of cut rather than in anatomical location. This is the case with some of the suit jackets which hug the upper hipbone but are unbelted and completely "at ease" through the midriff. Several of these shorter jackets are buttoned, but designed so the bottom button isn't used.

In other costumes, Dior definitely spells out the low waistline with belts set two to three inches below the normal one.

One handsome dress in black silk and wool is completely straight of line, with attached belt of the same fabric starting about two inches from the natural waist, winding around the upper hip, and instead of joining, finishing off a couple of inches lower. Small bows of the fabric designate the beginning and end of the belt.

The Frenchman, never a man to let a collection go without a monicker, calls his new silhouette the "Mobile Look."

It features necklines often collarless and usually standing away from the neck. When collared, the clothes are either scarf-tied, or draped. Sleeves are loose fitting. Skirts generally are slim, but a few are pleated or draped.

Dior goes along with other designers who provide walking room in the slim cut clothes which predominate this fall. He cuts slits from 6 to 24 inches in skirts, but always builds an under-foundation of the same fabric for modesty's sake.

Two Negroes Kidnaped

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—Two Negro girls told police early today that two carloads of armed white men kidnaped their dates after the Negroes attempted to pull into a white drive-in restaurant.

Police said the girls reported shortly before midnight Wednesday night that the two cars filled with white men forced their car over to the side of the street. They said the white men made the two Negro boys get into their cars and then drove away.

Police broadcast a state-wide alarm for the two cars described by the girls, identified as Loretta Washington, 19, and Arlene Brown 23, both of Birmingham.

The girls identified the victims as Henry Siler, 21, and Harold Cunningham, 19, also of Birmingham.

They told police that they were riding with their dates and decided to stop at a white drive-in for a milk shake. One of the girls said they pulled into the drive-in, but couldn't find a parking space and left without ordering.

Later, she said they noticed that two cars were following them with their headlights turned off. They told police that the two cars pulled alongside their car and that several of the men were waving pistols.

The girls said the white men forced their car to the curb and made the four Negroes get out. They said the men forced them to stand against a fence and made the two Negro boys get into separate cars.

The girls said they ran to telephone police as soon as the white men sped away with their captives.

Fire on Erie Docks Damaging

ERIE, Pa. (UP) — Fire swept five boathouses in the west slip of the Erie public dock during the night destroying as many as 10 cabin cruiser pleasure craft.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, was brought under control at 1 a.m. after a four-hour fight. Total damage was not estimated but fire officials said it would run into the thousands of dollars.

Unofficially, the damage was set at between $70,000 and $100,000.

The Coast Guard and volunteers towed five boats to safety.

Firemen were hampered in battling the blaze by a number of explosions, apparently of gasoline stores, but no one was injured.

For Passport Rules Tightening

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressmen called today for tightening of passport rules to prevent such cases as suspected spies slipping out of the country.

Assistant Attorney General William F. Tompkins meantime made plans to fly to France in a personal effort to obtain extradition of an accused American husband-and-wife spy team. The couple — Russian-born George Zlatovski, 47, and his American-born wife, Jane, 45 — were indicted Monday on charges of spying for the Soviet Union.

Legislators were upset because Mrs. Zlatovski managed to get a passport which let her slip out of the United States even though the FBI was wise to the couple's alleged activities.

Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) said a court decision virtually forced Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to grant a passport to Mrs. Zlatovski even though he was aware of the spy charges against her. Walter, chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activites, said this spotlighted "loose passport practices which are spearheaded by court decisions" and called on the House to pass "remedial legislation."

She then went to court, Morton said, and won a passport because the government decided "It was more important to safeguard the (FBI) files than to prevent her return to Paris."

Talking Mail Box in England

SCUNTHORPE, England (UP)—Mail boxes in England are great big cylindrical affairs called pillar boxes and are painted bright red.

Wednesday Joyce Fisher popped a postcard into the pillar box and it popped right out again.

She pushed it through the slot again. It came out again and a voice said with a bit of annoyance, "You haven't put a stamp on it."

Joyce took a stamp from her pocket book and pushed the card through the mailbox slot again. From inside, the voice said "That's better."

Then the workman cleaning the inside of the mailbox stepped out the rear door.

Musmanno Comments On Soviet Changes

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice Michael Musmanno, commenting today on the changes in Soviet leadership, said:

"The Russians have the cheapest retirement system in the world because the ink for a confession and the bullet for a pistol cost only a ruble or two."

Leslie Irvin

GETS REPRIEVE — "That's certainly something to go through," was the comment of Leslie Irvin, 33, who admitted killing six persons in a reign of terror, on learning his two attorneys had won him a stay of execution after his head had been shaved for Indiana's electric chair. A legal twist did the trick.

Wheeling Textile Firm Merger Given Approval

WHEELING, W. Va (UP)—The board of directors has approved the merger of J. L. Stifel & Sons, Wheeling textile firm, with Indian Head Mills Inc of New York and stockholders of the two firms will meet next month to vote on the proposal.

A spokesman said all details of the merger have not been completed and the conditions have not been definitely determined. It was learned, however, that under the plan, 307,440 shares of common stock in Stifel would be converted into 204,960 shares of preferred Indian Head stock

The exchange would be on the basis of one and a half shares of Stifel common stock for one share of outstanding $1 50 cumulative preferred stock of Indian Head

Earlier this year, the Stifel firm —one of Wheeling's oldest industries—announced plans for closing on July 1 because it had been losing money steadily over the past few years. It has not been announced if the plant will remain open as a result of the merger

Big 'Mistake' Shakes Cancer Research Field

(Third of a series)

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP)—What happened in the Drake Hotel in Chicago on March 26, 1951, is utterly unbelievable—yet it happened.

From that day until this one, life has been anything but the same for the man of science, Andrew C. Ivy, and for the whole of organized cancer research.

On that day at the Drake, Dr. Ivy held a private meeting to which he invited scientific colleagues, some wealthy laymen who were benefactors of science, and office-holding politicians. The 65-year-old scientist wanted to tell them — privately — about what he felt he had found out concerning Krebiozen's biological activity against cancer in man.

The colleagues he wished to interest in joining the research. The rich laymen were to see a promising scientific outlet for benefactors. The politicians were to be impressed with the important role the Durovic brothers were playing in cancer research, for they were in the country on visitor visas which were soon to expire.

If this meeting had been really private, there probably would have been no Krebiozen controversy, in Ivy's opinion.

Another Meeting Held

In the same hotel at the same time, there was another meeting—"a press conference" — called by the business man who had been Dr. Durovic's interpreter and guide in this country, and a partner. Their interest was legitimate if commercial. They thought Durovic had "a miracle drug" and were pressuring the Durovics for the commercial rights.

Somehow Ivy's meeting and this other meeting got merged All was confusion which resolved into fiasco. The net result was that news went out from Chicago that day that the famous Dr. Ivy had found a CURE for cancer. That word, "cure," in relation to cancer, does to anyone who knows anything about cancer, what a red flag does to a bull.

You may well be killing a man if you tell him there is an easy "cure" for his cancer and divert him from the tried treatments which might save him. Morally and ethically, whether from the medical viewpoint or any other, it is outrageous. Ivy agrees wholeheartedly with this, and he has proven conclusively that he was in no way the author of the "cure" report.

But the storm was unleashed Cancer patients and their relatives and doctors were roused to veritable frenzy — they thought the "cure" news was backed by the eminent Dr. Ivy. There is no question that the medical and scientific atmosphere had been made hostile because there was not the slightest evidence that Krebiozen was a "cure"—the evidence was that it seemed to be "biologically active"

Take-Off Point

Ivy hadn't yet published anything. "I wasn't ready for publication," he said. He was investigating from a theoretic take - off point which, his opponents agree, is sound. That take-off point is that the body seems to have chemical defenses against cancer —whatever they are. How else can you explain such well-documented phenomona as far - advanced malignancies disappearing on their own without any treatment?

That happens in one in every 50,000 to 100,000 cases, and so is quite rare. But less rarely, cancers will grow for a while and then stand still for periods ranging from months to many years Ivy had always maintained that the answer to cancer, if it were ever found, would be found in the natural chemical defenses when they were discovered and understood.

Believing that, Durovic's thesis had made sense Durovic said he had "stimulated" the anti-tumor chemistry of the horse by injecting a microorganism which causes tumor-like growths in cattle. Durovic had isolated from the blood of 2,000 horses so "stimulated," a white powder which he wanted to find out was the specific anti-tumor chemical compound, the chemistry of the horse had produced for protective purposes.

But the facts which stood out after the "cure" publicity, was that Ivy's investigative methods had been unorthodox (as they had been frequently in the past), and two persons—the Durovics—owned both the only existing supply of the substance and the secret of how to make it an so stood to make a fortune from the publicity.

Methodists to Talk About Segregation

The Methodist Church has scheduled public hearings in 24 cities, including Pittsburgh, this fall on the "strengths and "weaknesses" of its jurisdictional structure, including racial segregation.

The regional hearings were announced by the Rev. Dr. Cooper Bell of Lynchburg, Va., director of the 70-member commission empowered to make a four-year study. The commission's findings will be reported to the next general conference of the Methodist Church.

One of four hearings set for the northeastern jurisdiction will be held at the Methodist Center, Pittsburgh, October 16-17. Edwin L. Jones, of Charlotte, N. C., will be chairman of the panel. Any Methodist in the Erie, Pittsburgh, and West Virginia conference, can be heard if he files a request 30 days in advance with the panel chairman.

Other hearings for the northeastern jurisdiction have been set for Philadelphia, Oct. 9-10; Boston, Oct. 11-12, and New York City, Oct. 14-15.

The study commission was created last year by the Methodist General Conference, the church's top legislative body, in answer to numerous petitions relating to problems of race and charges of sectionalism in the jurisdictional system. Charles C. Parlin, prominent layman of Englewood, N. J., was appointed chairman. Members from the Pittsburgh episcopal area are the Rev. John Hannifan, of Clarksburg, W. Va., and George W. Culberson, of Pittsburgh.

The nation's largest Protestant denomination with nearly 10 million members, the Methodist Church in the United States is divided into six jurisdictions — five geographical and one Negro. The jurisdictions are subdivided into episcopal areas and annual conferences under the administration of 37 bishops.

The Pittsburgh area, under the leadership of Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke, includes approximately a half million members of 2450 churches in the western tip of New York State, western Pennsylvania and the state of West Virginia, plus a small portion of Maryland. These form the Erie, Pittsburgh and West Virginia conferences.

The two-day hearings in Pittsburgh will be conducted by six subcommittees or panels, each composed of 10 to 12 commission members. No member will serve in his own jurisdiction.

Rate Increase Asked by Firm

HARRISBURG (UP) — Home Telephone Co., Ridgway, has proposed an estimated $130,400 annual rate increase effective Oct. 1 for its subscribers in Cameron, Elk, Jefferson and McKean counties.

The firm filed a proposed rate schedule with the Public Utility Commission calling for increases for some 12,598 subscribers. It serves the four county area from exchanges in Brockway, Driftwood, Emporium, Weedville, Johnsonburg, Kersey, Ridgway, St. Marys and Wilcox.

The telephone company said it needed the additional revenue to meet higher operating costs.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear father, father-in-law and grandfather, George Pidich, who died three years ago today, July 11, 1954
We live today with memories
Of days when you were here
We miss you still and always will
Throughout each day and year.
At night when all is silent
And sleep forsakes our eyes
Our thoughts are in that lonely grave
Where our dear loved one lies.
Sadly missed by Son, Daughter-in-law and Grandson

In loving memory of our dear son, brother and uncle, George Dahood, who died 13 years ago today, July 11, 1944
Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break but all in vain.
To have, to love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart
The years may wipe out many things
But this they wipe out never —
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together
Sadly missed by Parents, Sister and Her Children

Killer Admits Hacking Death Of Six Persons

SANTIAGO, Chile (UP)—Police said today a paroled killer has admitted hacking to death a woman and her five children.

The confessed mass murderer was identified as Jose Roldan Concha, 27, an iron miner. His victims were the wife and children of another miner, Custodio Gomez Chaco, at Los Colphues iron mine camp at Pupunahue in Valdivia Province.

Roldan Concha was released on parole for good behavior after serving one year of a five - year prison sentence for killing a man in self defense.

Monday night, according to police, he went to the home of Gomez Chaco while the miner was working on the night shift. Wielding a huge woodsman's ax, Roldan Concha killed Mrs. Gomez Chaco and the children, who ranged in age from one to 14 years.

Then, while neighbors spurred by the terrified screams of the woman and children rushed to summon Gomez Chaco, Roldan Concha fled into the woods.

Police captured him after an all-night hunt. They said he surrendered without a fight and freely admitted the killings but would give no reason.

'Person to Person' Has Challenging Moments

(William Ewald is on vacation. Today's guest writers are John Aaron and Jesse Zousmer, co-producers of Ed Murrow's CBS-TV show, "Person to Person.")

By JOHN AARON
and JESSE ZOUSMER

NEW YORK (UP)—Ed Murrow tells us he's frequently asked: "What do your 'Person to Person' producers produce?" Tough question.

We have seen, heard and read about the duties of a Hollywood producer, a radio producer, a TV dramatic or quiz program producer. But to produce a live television program, every Friday night, with remote visits to two homes, in different parts of the country, can require some strange "production" by us and our staff.

Because so many factors are uncontrollable, the role of producer on "Person to Person" is somewhat unpredictable. Over the course of four seasons, for example, we've been called on to locate a remote truck headed for Marian Anderson's with its $50,000 worth of gear which made a wrong turn and got lost, to trying to resolve whether Anita Ekberg should wear earrings or not.

At one time or another, we've been "consultants" on interior decorating for Elsa Maxwell, the care and feeding of Roy Rogers' baby, tending Jayne Mansfield's rabbit, fashion 'experts" for Janet Leigh and furniture movers at Tennessee Ernie Ford's.

We've never "lost" a remote. But we've come close. An unusual heat wave almost burned up our equipment when we visited Dick Powell and June Allyson in California. The ceiling fell in the night we did Eartha Kitt. Mary Martin almost had to cancel out on the day of the show when her daughter, Heller, suddenly got the mumps. Mike Todd and Elizabeth Taylor got tied up in traffic and almost didn't make it.

But we've now visited homes including those of a former President (Truman) and a former king (the Duke of Windsor) and are still alive to talk about it. Of course, we've juggled transportation (for Frank Sinatra, among others), fought the weather (at singer Roberta Peters), conflicting commitments (Yehudi Menuhin), and even house painters and baby sitters.

Oh, yes. When we finally get home late Friday night, more often early Saturday, our wives have that inevitable question: "Anything new?" And by this time we're inclined to say:

"How could there by anything new?"

But we know better. Monday, it starts all over again.

Television Trend This Fall Turns To the Western

Ken Murray substitutes for vacationing Aline Mosby as Hollywood columnist.

By KEN MURRAY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) —It requires no crystal ball gazer to predict that the television trends this fall will include heavy emphasis on (a) Western, and (b) flying adventure series.

I figure the best hedge against inflation is to be riding both trends. I've got a foot in each bandwagon and I'm sitting pretty—unless the bandwagons take off in two different directions.

"El Coyote Rides" is a Western telefilm series which Ken Murray Enterprises is producing in association with RKO - Teleradio, and "Sky Dogs" which I am producing for NBC, combines the K9 Corps' parachuting dogs with the adventures of Civil Air Patrol flyers.

Galloping or zooming, I've got them!

As far as the Western is concerned, it will outlive us all.

There are perfectly good reasons for this, all of which, you may be sure, are exploited to the hilt in "El Coyote Rides," which is the story of Bat Masterson, famed frontier peace officer, and his daughter, Jane.

One of the factors which makes the Western deathless is the physical action in which it abounds. Another is the scenic backgrounds which it offers.

Sun Bath Fine Idea; Beware of Sunburn

By H. N. BUNDESEN M. D.

Relaxing in the sun probably is more essential for men — especially keyed-up businessmen — than for women. Yet most men know little about sunburn and how to prevent and treat it.

This is unfortunate, because men are more susceptible to sunburn than women. So let me give the male members of the household a little advice about sun bathing. Of course, you women should follow it, too.

If you have a dark complexion and dark hair, you probably will be able to stand the sunshine better than those with fair skin and blond or red hair.

Therefore, those you with dark hair should be able to spend about 15 minutes or so sun bathing on the first day. This is not very long, I will admit, but you should be able to stand the sun's rays better by the second day.

During the second day of sun bathing, you can try two halfhour periods: one in the morning and the other in the afternoon. After this, you can increase the daily dosage of sun gradually.

For men with red or blond hair, five to ten minutes exposure is enough for the first few days. You will gradually be able to lengthen your stay in the sun.

Protective lotions, oils or creams generally are advisable, especially for those of you with fair skin. Petrolatum or zinc oxide ointment will usually filter the rays effectively.

While all cases of severe sunburn should be treated by a doctor, here is what you can do to relieve the discomfort of minor burns. Try ice-cold compresses of mineral oil, carron oil or even milk.

Dusting the burned area with a powder containing equal parts of talc, boric acid and zinc oxide several times a day and before bedtime also will be comforting.
